

Another Kitten: Revisiting "Courage and the Crossdresser"

Another Kitten

Holy crap... that's a girl. I mean, I know it's a mirror and all, but she sure as hell looks like the real deal.

This is weird... I buy a wig online and it actually fits me.

The color was a total guess, yet it's a perfect match for my own hair, even the texture.

This couldn't look any more realistic if I grew it myself. I mean, what are the odds?

Plus, all it took was a padded bra and shaved legs for the rest of me to look totally fem.

No one's ever gonna confuse me with a jock, but still... it shouldn't be this easy to turn myself into a girl, should it?

C'mon, Jamie, get a grip. You put on this much makeup, you're gonna look like a girl, right?

Bzzzt... Guys wearing makeup usually turn out like drag queens, but I look like one of the cool girls who always ignored me. What's up with that?

Okay... What if Cinderella was a real thing? Maybe my fairy godmother wants me to bog off to some fancy party and hook up with a cute boy. So maybe I should.

Or maybe Santa Claus just came through in a big way.

Either way, I could hit the bricks right now and everyone'd think I'm a real girl. Just another kitten in the crowd.

Oh wow, I'm so doing this. I want someone to see me. I need this to be real.

I'm going out.

Finally.

FIN

Amanda Hawkins

